CORRECTED

EXPLANATION:

The Board of Game adopted framework bag limits for ptarmigan in Game Management Units 12, 20, and 25C and delegated authority to the department to adjust bag limits within this framework based on population trends. This emergency order adjusts bag limits for regulatory year 2015–2016. In addition to this emergency order, adjusted bag limits are printed in the 2015–2016 Hunting Regulation Book No. 56.

This updated version corrects the closing date of the 20 per day, 40 in possession bag limit to February 29.

REGULATION:

Therefore, the following regulations in 5 AAC 85.065(a)(3), HUNTING SEASONS AND BAG LIMITS FOR SMALL GAME, are superseded by this emergency order, and the following provisions are effective for hunting ptarmigan:

Units and Bag Limits	Resident Open Season (Subsistence and General Hunts)	Nonresident Open Season
(3) Ptarmigan (rock, willow, and white- tailed)
...
Units 12, 20, and 25(C)
20 per day, 40 in possession	Aug. 10-Feb 29 (General hunt only)	Aug. 10-Feb 29
5 per day, 10 in possession	Mar. 1-Apr. 30 (General hunt only)	Mar. 1-Apr. 30

All other ptarmigan hunting regulations remain unchanged and are not affected by this emergency order.

Doreen Parker McNeill
Management Coordinator

JUSTIFICATION:

In Interior Alaska, ptarmigan populations exhibit large fluctuations in abundance. Adverse weather or high predator numbers during a few years can reduce chick production and overwinter survival, resulting in rapid and substantial declines. However, if environmental conditions are favorable, ptarmigan can respond quickly and become plentiful.

Harvest impacts ptarmigan in various ways. To ensure adequate protection to the population and to optimize hunter opportunity, the Alaska Department of Fish and Game must take into account population status and trend, harvest amount and timing, and trend of other mortality factors. Studies conducted in Alaska and western Canada indicate harvest has little impact when populations are high. However, when populations are low, harvest can have significant effects especially in late winter after most other sources of mortality have declined or if resident breeding birds are taken. Managing ptarmigan seasons and bag limits based on population trends allows both the greatest hunting opportunity during population highs and adequate protection when there are few birds.

Based on survey data and hunter observations from the Interior road system, ptarmigan populations peaked in the mid to late 1990s, subsequently declined, and still have not fully recovered. Therefore, the bag limit during the spring portion of the hunting season has been restricted as indicated above.
