

Intrastate Travel Guidelines Spring 2020

The purpose of the following guidelines is to slow and otherwise disrupt the spread of the COVID-19 virus by limiting movement between communities when possible and implementing mindful practices. Although travel between communities is prohibited under the health mandate, the Alaska Department of Fish and Game has informed Alaskans that they may still travel responsibly to hunting and fishing areas.

When traveling, everyone must follow these guidelines:

- 1) Try to find the resource you intend to pursue as close to your home residence as possible.
- 2) Before you leave, find and understand the local mandates in communities through which you plan to travel. You must abide by them.
- 3) Totally provision your trip from your community of origin. Don't plan on buying food, drinks, or even fuel if possible, after you begin your trip and until you return home.
- 4) Wear face coverings as suggested in Health Alert 10 (issued April 3).
- 5) You are required to practice social distancing mandates with anyone not in your immediate household, including while traveling to and from your community to your hunting location. Avoid interacting with residents of communities through which you travel.

Adherence to these guidelines will allow Alaskans the opportunity to hunt and put food on their tables while taking measures to protect public health and allow time to build needed health infrastructure. Please adhere to these guidelines to ensure these opportunities can continue. Be safe and considerate of others.
