- This table was designed to maintain an 80/20 troll/sport average over time
- Non-residents will be managed so that residents will not be closed, unless for conservation purposes only
- Any underage of the net-gear fishery or sport fishery will transfer to the troll fleet
- The arrangement will sunset at the next Board of Fisheries Southeast meeting (2025)

1:11:59 Madam Chair Märit Carlson Van-Dort:

We have the language in RC 178 before us. Ms. McKenzie, would you like to speak to RC 178?

1:12:09 McKenzie Mitchell:

Absolutely. Thank you, Madam Chair. This was a cooperative effort between the Alaska Trollers Association, Southeast Alaska Guides Organization, and Territorial Sportsmen Incorporated, to, I guess, develop a King salmon management plan that allows for a president, a resident priority, as well as an 80/20 allocation managed at an average between the troll and sport fishery.

1:19:11 Patrick Fowler ADF&G: So, one other point I want to make, bring to the board's attention, just to clarify. So this would manage the sport fishery with, with no in-season management. So these bag and possession limits that I've announced would be maintained throughout the season, even if the department projects that the allocation of the sport fishery would be exceeded, or if there would be remaining allocation on the table that would be transferred to the troll fishery.

1:19:43 Commissioner Doug Vincent-Lang:

So getting to that last point, it's my understanding, correct me if I'm wrong, that the bag and possession limits that you came up with for the sport fishery are largely designed around a 20/80 split . . .

1:21:23 Patrick Fowler ADF&G

Yes, sir. Mr. Commissioner. So, the one major change is that the individual tiers we expect to exceed allocation in the lower tiers and fall short of allocation in the upper tiers.
