JUSTIFICATION:

The biological escapement goal (BEG) for Karluk River king salmon of 3,000 to 6,000 fish has been achieved only three times since 2006. In January 2011, the Board of Fisheries designated Karluk River king salmon a stock of concern. Recent poor king salmon productivity statewide and very low escapements in recent years in the Karluk River justifies closure of the king salmon sport fishery. Additionally, in order to reduce mortality, the use of bait is prohibited and lures are limited to one single-hook, artificial lure within Karluk River drainage below Karluk Lake. Fishing opportunity may be allowed by subsequent emergency order if inseason assessment of the Karluk River king salmon run indicates the BEG will be attained.
