JUSTIFICATION:

Susitna River king salmon and other king salmon stocks throughout Cook Inlet are experiencing a period of low productivity and, since 2007, below average run strength. The department monitors escapement on eight streams on the Eastside Susitna River with established escapement goals. King salmon counts have ranged from poor to below average since 2007. Fewer than half the escapement goals were achieved 2008 – 2012. The preseason strategy implemented in 2013 – 2016 reduced harvest by 100 percent among Eastside Susitna streams and resulted in the majority of goals being made.

Given past performance of fisheries within the Eastside Susitna tributaries, continued conservative actions must be taken in 2017. Preseason restrictions set out under this emergency order are similar as those implemented in 2013 – 2016. Areas within the Susitna River drainage that have demonstrated a chronic inability to achieve escapement goals when harvest is allowed during low run years warrant nonretention of king salmon. These areas correspond to Units 2, 3, 5, and 6 of the Susitna River.

This reduction is expected to provide the greatest potential for achieving escapement goals during 2017 yet continue to provide fishing opportunity throughout the season. Below average runs during previous years, past performance of fisheries within the Susitna River drainage under previous years' management strategies, and uncertainty over how returns may recover in the future justify starting the 2016 season with these restrictions. Data gathered from weirs, boat surveys, and aerial surveys will be used to gauge run strength during the season.
